

Call for Papers for the 2013 NACSSC

The 2013 North American Celtic Studies Student Conference will be held at the University of Ottawa in Ottawa, Canada. It will be hosted by the University of Ottawa Celtic Club.

We are now accepting proposals for the North American Celtic Studies Student Conference, which will be held from May 31st to June 2nd, 2013 at the University of Ottawa. As this event seeks to foster exchanges across many areas of Celtic studies between undergraduate and graduate students in this field, we are seeking submissions that reflect the various research projects and interests of Celtic Studies students across North America. What are you researching, and why? What sources are you engaging with through your work? What understandings do you wish to gain and/or share through your work?

Proposals, of 200-500 words, are welcomed for fifteen minute presentations of papers. Proposals should include: (1) the thesis; (2) a description of the research and/or arguments presented; (3) an overview of your sources and/or methodology. They must give good insight into the relevance of the project to the theme of the conference. As we are fortunate enough to be hosting this event at Canada's bilingual university, papers may be presented in French or English.

Additionally, the following information must be supplied: Title of paper, author's full name, affiliated university, program of studies, e-mail address.

Please complete this online submission form to submit a proposal. The deadline to submit a proposal is May 3rd, 2013, using the online form. Please note you must also register to attend the conference separately. Please do so here.

Acknowledgement of receipt. You will receive an acknowledgement of receipt of your submission by e-mail. If you do not receive an acknowledgement e-mail within 5 business days of submission, you should send an e-mail inquiring about the status of your submission to nacssc@hotmail.com.

Please note that all accepted proposals will be shared as an abstract of your work (either online and/or in print as it is presented to us with your name, program, and university to help promote the conference events.
